Advanced Technology Driving Telecom Industry To Research & Develop

In one of the fastest growing industries in the world the Telecom sector has been developing mass amounts of technology to keep up with competitors. There are many aspects of development that need to be covered such as productivity, security, reliability, and durability which include a significantly large amount of R&D.

Examples of Eligible SR&ED activities: (Telecom Industry)

- Research on coding schemes to allow for all-digital television and investigation into innovative display technologies, terminal equipment and storage media.
- Build and evaluate a distributed storage server for continuous media data, including audio and video in a wide variety of formats.
- Developed an extensive set of analysis and simulation skills and tools for the evaluation of data transmission over satellite and other wireless links.

If you find your company currently takes part in any of these activities, then why wait to take advantage of the SR&ED tax credit program to receive healthy credit for your innovations?

You are only a few steps away from getting what your company truly deserves for creating, innovating, and developing new products or process.

The Scientific Research and Experimental Development Program:

SR&ED incentives take the form of tax credits, and accelerated or additional tax deductions for expenditures made on research and development. Canadian businesses of all sizes, in all sectors are eligible to receive SR&ED tax credits. The incentives range from 20% of the expenditure, to almost 50% in favorable circumstances.

SR&ED expenditures can include wages, materials, machinery, equipment, overheads, and SR&ED contracts.
